ALL SORTS.

Frank Dunn has returned to Carson.

Johnny Jones is back from the Fair.

No mail arrived in Carson Sunday from the East or West.

Yesterday's rain made things very slushy and outa provoking.

Wonder if Evans and Morrell will be on exhibition at the Fair.

If the blockade isn't lifted today, snow shovellers will be in demand.

Awnings and signs were knocked endways by the force of Sunday's gale.

The skylight in Hawes' gallery was broken by the wind Sunday night.

The bay window in the Wieland saloon was broken by the wind Sunday evening.

The APPEAL has laid in its supply of paper and is prepared to stand a long blockade.

You could get almost any kind of weather you wanted yesterday—except good weather.

Miss Emma Lohman, Miss Velma Crane and J. Connelly and wife, have gone to visit the Fair.

The man who asks, "Is this snow enough for you?" ought to have his tongue cut out with a rip saw.

Wm. Woodburn started for Winnemucca, but had to return yesterday morning on account of the blockade.

Regular subscribers to the Carson APPEAL can get the Midwinter Appeal by paying one dollar cash in advance. Tick $2.50.

It is a singular coincidence that the Democratic Senators who favor an increase of the tax on beer have no big breweries in their States.

On account of stormy weather the exhibition and lectures on World's Fair will be postponed until Saturday and Monday, Feb. 24 and 26.

Isn't it queer? If that beastly hedgehog hadn't seen his shadow the last time he came out of his hole, we wouldn't have this beastly weather.

A blind man who was out in the storm yesterday morning thought he was being snow-balled, when he felt the big wet flakes coming against him.

Hobson's wife, reading paper—The total attendance at the Fair yesterday was 7,123.

Hobson, in surprise—Must be a mistake; I saw 8,123 gum girls.

The man who robbed the V. & T. R. R. Company in Carson a few days ago of $2,500, was in Camp yesterday having a general good time and blowing in his money.—Mid-Winter Appeal.

The APPEAL is in receipt of a 96-page pamphlet entitled, "Silver and the Science of Money," by Wm. M. Stewart. It handles the subject in detail, and is full of statistics and valuable information.

But ten jurors were secured in the trial of Matt Brannan yesterday for assault and battery, and the venire being exhausted, the trial was continued until this morning. Furlong's trial will follow.

The Carson Guard ball at their Armory, Wednesday night, will be a score of ten straight bullseyes. A crowd of Comstock soldiers will be down and it will be an affair calculated to make one forget hard times.

As fast as new things happen in the Evans and Sontag tragedy, a new act is added to the drama. It now consists of seven or eight acts, and the players are kept so busy rehearsing new scenes that they have to eat and sleep on the stage.

THE BANDITS CAPTURED.

Evans and Morrell Again in the Law's Clutches.

The following dispatch was received at this office yesterday afternoon:

San Francisco, Feb., 19.—Evans and Morrell were captured at Evan's house at Visalia this morning at 10 30 by Sheriff McKay and posse. The house was surrounded, and the men threatened with certain death. A Catholic Priest went to the house with a flag of truce and advised them to give in. They then came out and were hand cuffed. The house has been surrounded by a big posse since day break.

THE STORM.

Roads Blockaded, Engines Ditched and Wires Down.

The last storm was the biggest in years on the S. P., and reports go to show that it has been general all over the Coast.

The wires are down between here and San Francisco, and five engines and a rotary snow plow are stuck in a snow bank near Truckee.

The V. & T. is open between here and Reno, but yesterday's passenger train is stuck between Gold Hill and Virginia, and an engine and plow are off the track at Baltic Switch.

No mail arrived from Virginia last night, the local from Carson only going to Mound House, and returning with the mail from along the C. & C.

The work of clearing the road is going on steadily, in an endeavor to get the road clear today.

He Got There.

On Wednesday evening Senator Jones visited the 40 Camp and took in the hurry house, enjoying every minute of the time spent. He treated the boys, took a turn at the wheel and was simply entranced at the gyrations of the dancers. The appearance of the old silver Senator in camp drew a good many miners out of their holes, one of whom tells this story on Jones:

Once in Placerville he was invited to a ball and his white shirt being in the wash he appropriated one belonging to J. Owens, a miner in an adjoining cabin. Owens traced up the matter and was very hot when he found his shirt on Jones. He charged him with stealing it and offered to bet Jones $20 that his name was on it.

Jones, who never takes a bluff, put up the money and on the show down sure enough there was the name J. Owens stamped on the shirt.

"Hold on that's my name," said Jones and he slowly repeated the letters "J-o-w-e-n-s; that's the way I always spell it."

The crowd howled at the clever way the Senator lit on his feet and J. Owens set up the drinks.

Politics Boiling in Nevada.

Reno, Nevada, Feb. 16.—The forming of new Republican clubs goes bravely on in Nevada. The refusal of Senator Jones to advance the coin necessary to place the party on a paying basis is considerable of a drawback. All who sign the roll of membership endorse the principle that Nevada is willing to pay a large tariff on all articles manufactured in the state, and not demand any reciprocity on the silver question. They also agree not to hold any real estate in Nevada, and all bind themselves to move to California if they don't succeed in getting office next fall.—Midwinter Appeal.

A Loose Chimney.

The box factory closed down yesterday as the wind had loosened the band around the big chimney, causing it to slip down and slack the wires. One of the wires goes across the railroad track and is fastened to a tree.

It was necessary to take up this slack as the first locomotive that came by would yank the big sheet iron chimney into the next county. Everything will be all right in a day or two.

The people will vote for president this year because the congress chosen in 1894 will have to elect a president in 1896, providing the People's party maintains or increases its political strength, which it undoubtedly will. The Populists will either elect their nominee for president in 1896 or throw the election into the house which will be elected this year.—Denver News.

COAST NEWS.

Otto Colier, who had lost money in investments lately, killed himself at Los Angeles Saturday.

J. M. Kinnaird, a prominent attorney of Spokane, has disappeared mysteriously, and as he had seemed to be despondent it is feared he has committed suicide.

Chemical analyses of the stomach of Mrs. Barnett and her two children who died recently at Santa Jacinto, Riverside county, suddenly, have revealed poison.

The hearing of the testimony in the preliminary examination in the Meagher case at Petaluma Saturday attracted about 1,000 spectators. Nothing further than the evidence before the Coroner's jury was obtained.

Jim Cross was arrested at Hagerman, Idaho, for looting a cabin. The officer who had him in charge was accompanied by two witnesses. The constable left the room where the men were and inadvertently placed his pistol on the table. Cross took the pistol, fatally shot the witnesses, jumped on a horse belonging to one of them and made his escape.

Olympia, Wash., is greatly stirred up over the cruel treatment of a young woman, who was a member of the Salvation Army by several young men of that place. The girl eventually died and was buried hastily. The Churches have taken up the story and made a text for sermons in which the principals engaged in the outrageous affair are execrated.

Two Suspects Arrested.

Route Agent Rockwell, who has been in Carson a week investigating the recent train robbery, Sunday investigated the arrest of Jack Dunlap and Ernest Minor, on suspicion of being implicated in the affair. Dunlap was taken to the Penitentiary and Miner lodged in the Carson jail, as the authorities deemed it inadvisable to allow them to be together.

The cause of the arrest was the finding of four sticks of giant powder in the bedroom of the two men. The powder was tied together in one bundle, and all attached to a single fuse. Dunlap claims it was for the purpose of blasting rock from a wagon road in the hills west of Bath's ranch, where he had been hauling wood. It was hinted at the ranch that the contrivance was for killing fish.

Both of the men say they were not in Carson the night of the robbery, and that the people at Bath's ranch can swear to it. Henry Bath says both the men are innocent.

They will have a hearing next Monday.

Mental Wrecks.

Sacramento, Feb. 16.—The printers who were arrested for stealing type from the News office turn out to be representing a syndicate of newspaper men who desire to start another daily newspaper in Carson City, Nevada. They have been handed over to the Lunacy Commission for treatment.—Midwinter Appeal.

Antidote For Poison.

An exchange says: Now that the dog fiend is making his rounds it is well to know that powdered alum is a sure cure for strychnine or any other form of poison. A tablespoonful administered soon after the poison is taken will immediately relieve the most desperate case.
